LeadEx aims to improve educational regional public policies across 7 European regions. Through a holistic interregional learning approach, it will support the continuous professional development of teachers, inclusion, innovation and excellence in education.

Key activities

- interregional seminars and study visits
- exchange of best practices between regions
- regional stakeholder groups
- peer learning and policy improvements

Why this project matters?

Education is key for economic growth, social inclusion and well-being. However, significant disparities in educational performance remain across European regions. Recent international assessments such as PISA highlight growing challenges in educational outcomes and the urgent need to support teachers, innovation and inclusive learning environments.
